"I urge that if war were never justifiable—if a Christian-could not draw his sword in defense of his country without disloyalty to Christ—the inspired writers would not have selected the terms of war and the armor of a soldier as symbols of the Christian life and of Christian virtues. Fight the good fight of faith, cries St. Paul. The good fight of faith, cries St. Paul. The proof of the wanderlust movement. Many a lasting friendship has resulted therefrom.

Pass Civil War Hospital.

"For those who continued all the way it was just six and one-half miles. From the District line we strolled along by the railway to Silver Spring, passing the old post office building used by the Confederate general, Jubal Anderson Early, as a hospital during the ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. Stand, therefore, having your loins girded up with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; and your feet shod with the preparation of the Gospel of peace; above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith you shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. And take the helmet of salvation and the sword of the spirit. Surely if the profession of a soldier had been fundamentally opposed to the Christian religion some other imagery than this would have been adopted by the inspired writers.

Opposes Peace at Any Price.

Declaring his belief in the ideals of peace, but holding that peace is bought too dearly when it is obtained at the price of national honor, Rev. Dr. McKim said:

Scenes Along the Sulvation by the Confederate general, Jubal Anderson Early, as a hospital during the civil war.

"Leaving here the route led along the old Colesville pike to Sligo branch, the washington Sanitarium and old Sligo mills, the ruins of which, with the old turbine wheel, still remain in a good state of preservation.

"There was quite a variety of scenery. At places old Sligo was not so interesting as it wound its way through a narrow mudbank channel; at other places the rocky bowlders along the bank and the smaller rocks in the stream, with a gravel bed underneath, made it fittingly compare with our memory of 'the laughing brook.'

"There can be no question that the peace-at-any-price people have done great peace-at-any-price people have done great harm to the interests of our country. Doubtless they have the best intentions, doubtless their enthusiasm is sincere, but in fact they are dreamers and unpractical theorists, and their pacifist movement has been seriously hurtful to the best interests of the nation. If it be true that they have established a congressional lobby for the purpose of defeating appropriations for enlarging the army or the navy or for coam fortification, then their zeal and activity have been most seriously misdirected.

"Every patriot must see, under the conditions that now confront us, that the first duty of our government is to put the country in a state of defense by strengthening both the army and the navy and by raising our coast fortifications to the highest standard of defense."

"A rustic bridge here and there crossing the creek made us wonder what charms there might be on the beautiful country lane ahead it was hard to determine: but, like true hikers, we followed the leader. Black Enamel Suit or Automobile Cases are now very much in demand. These are in 24, 26 and 28 inch sizes, 8 inches deep, with cretonne lining and removable tray; riveted leather corners, brass lock and strong sewed handle. This case is thoroughly waterproof, strong and durable in every particular, and is far superior in both quality and size to the Ban on Weather Forecasts.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 6.—No more weather forecasts are to be issued to the newspapers by the British meteorological bureau. At the beginning of the war the weather report service was greatly curtailed on orders from the war office, which asserted that it was information highly valuable to the encury. A brief daily forecast, however.
